WHY I LOVE ...
LOSERS

“Losers is a dive bar, and it’s the kind of place where I started my career, so I feel at home,” Lambert says of the Nashville haunt. “It’s low-key, and it’s got a great jukebox with a lot of old country music.”

Miranda Lambert
A REVOLUTIONARY ROAD

It almost feels too good to be true, Miranda Lambert admits. “This year has been explosive,” she says. “There are too many blessings to count. It kind of makes me walk on eggshells—it’s like, ‘Okay when’s something bad going to happen?’” With nine CMA nominations (a record for a female artist) for her platinum-selling Revolution—an album that spawned her first two No. 1 singles, “White Liar” and “The House that Built Me”—her first ACM win for top female vocalist and her first AMA nomination, Lambert’s career is blazing hot. Even better? She has someone to share it with: Longtime boyfriend Blake Shelton proposed in May after five years of dating. “It’s really cool that I can celebrate my career and actually be happy in my personal life instead of all the good stuff happening on one side or another,” she says. The couple have plenty to celebrate since Shelton scored four CMA nods of his own this year. “I’m lucky because I’ve had him in my life to help me through the beginning hard times as an artist,” she says. “He’s been doing it 10 years on this level, and he’s got his crap together, so there were times when I’d be gone 200 days a year and think, ‘I can’t do this,’ and he’d be like, ‘Yes, you can. It will get better.’” How right he was.
